Smart Hub is a tool to help you save

BABY IT'S COLD OUTSIDE!

Well, at least it is as I am writing this—a low of 25 this morning and a heavy enough frost to look like snow in my yard. It's pretty, but cold weather can cause higher power bills—the subject of this month's column.

Since this is a major topic for so many of our folks, I wanted to first cover a few myths and misunderstandings around such bills.

Does SEC increase usage rates at Christmas time? No, of course not. In fact, the last time our energy charge increased was in August 2017. However, it did decrease in January 2020 and has not changed since then.

If I keep my thermostat on the same setting, shouldn't my bill always be the same? While it is true that your biggest power user (by far) is your HVAC system, a constant thermostat setting will not keep your energy usage flat. A thermostat setting of 68 degrees is much easier to maintain (meaning less power usage) when the average temperature outside is 60 degrees than when it is 40 degrees.

I should not see much of a difference from one month's bill to the next. Actually, temperatures can vary a great deal from one month to the next. If you want to do a comparison, it's best to look at the same month last year compared to this year, and even that isn't perfect.

I was barely home last month, so I could not have used that much power. The biggest users of power in your home are usually your HVAC system and your water heater (assuming it is a traditional electric unit). Unless you significantly change the thermostat settings while you are gone, they will use nearly the same amount of power whether you are home or not.

This new automated meter caused my bill to go up. In my 20-year career, I have seen old electromechanical meters slow down with age, but I have never seen one speed up. The new digital meters are far superior.

What can our members do to protect themselves against high power bills? Use SmartHub (there's an app and a web page version you can use at santee.smarthub.coop/login.html). With SmartHub, which is completely free, you can monitor your own hourly usage. You can see when your energy use is creeping up due to extreme temperatures. You can even use it to notice sudden increases in your usage that might be due to a problem. Most of the time, high usage can be explained by extreme temperatures, but, sometimes, it's because a pump is running all the time, or your thermostat is causing your heat strips to stay on 24 hours a day.

Paying attention to SmartHub will help you catch these problems when they are only a few days old, as opposed to after they have impacted an entire power bill. Of course, our Member Service Representatives are happy to help you set up a payment arrangement if you get surprised by an unusually high bill. A better solution, though, is to use SmartHub to avoid the problem in the first place.

Santee Electric supports first generation college students

SINCE 1970, Francis Marion University has kept its tuition costs low and its academic standards high. Those qualities, along with its commuter-friendly campus, have made FMU a great choice for generations of Santee Electric Cooperative members. During the most recent academic year, 1423 undergraduate students and 166 graduate students were from Clarendon, Florence, Georgetown and Williamsburg counties, the counties served by SEC. That is a strong representation of our area given a total enrollment of 4261 students at FMU during that timeframe.

In 2020, FMU established its First Generation Fund to help individuals who are the first in their family to attend college. According to FMU, more than 40% of the most recent freshman class was comprised of first-generation students. Realizing the profound impact that this fund could have on our members, SEC's Operation Round Up trust board agreed to donate $12,500 to the scholarship fund over a period of time. Recipients of scholarships from this donation will be first-generation students with a financial need and who are active members of SEC or the dependent of an SEC member.

"We are pleased to present this donation to FMU on behalf of our members. SEC has been fortunate enough to recruit several FMU alumni, including me, and we clearly see the benefits of having a nationally accredited university located so close to us," says Rob Ardis, president and CEO of SEC.

Hal Lowder, chairman of the Operation Round Up trust board adds, "Operation Round Up exists to help those in need. There is no greater need in this area than education and there is no more enduring a gift than helping someone get educated. We are proud to support these scholarships."

"Once again Santee Electric Cooperative has provided generous funding to assure educational opportunities for students from the Pee Dee region," says Dr. Fred Carter, president of FMU. "First-generation college students are one of our most important constituencies, and Santee Electric Cooperative's donation further bolsters FMU's ability to provide them with an accessible and meaningful education. We are most appreciative."

This donation was funded by our members who voluntarily opt to have their monthly electric bills rounded to the nearest dollar through Operation Round Up. Most individual members contribute about six dollars per year to Operation Round Up which, although not a lot per member, adds up and makes donations like this possible. If you are not already a participant in Operation Round Up and would like to make a difference in your community, please call one of our member service representatives at (800) 922-1604; Option 3.

To make a donation directly to the First Generation Fund at Francis Marion University, please call (843) 661-1200.

Peddinghaus pride

Andrews machinery builder a part of nation's infrastructure

JOSH P. CROTZER

AS SOON AS YOU ENTER Bob Meltzer's office, you know right away he's a Chicago Cubs fan. He proudly displays posters, ticket stubs and other Cubs gear. It's obvious his 23 years in Andrews and away from his native Illinois has done little to diminish devotion to his team.

He does have a competing passion, however—Peddinghaus, the Santee Electric Cooperative-served manufacturing company that brought him to South Carolina when it opened a second American plant in 1997. Since 2000, Meltzer has been the chief operating officer of Peddinghaus South Carolina, overseeing the production of specialized machines for structural steel and heavy plate processing.

"It's been a great company to work for," says Meltzer. "Taking care of their employees is important to them and so is producing the highest quality products in our industry."

Peddinghaus machines drill, cut, mark and process structural steel that is often used in building major infrastructure such as bridges, hospitals and stadiums.

As happy as Meltzer was about returning to the iconic Wrigley Field to see his Cubs play a World Series game in 2016, he has just as much pride for the stadiums he and his team have had a part in erecting—Yankee Stadium, the home stadiums of the Dallas Cowboys and the Arizona Cardinals and last year's Super Bowl site in Minneapolis, Minnesota.

Meltzer isn't the only one that carries around Peddinghaus pride.

"You can ride across a bridge and know that you had a part in punching the holes in that steel," explains Mary Lewis, a member of Santee Electric and the company's first female machine shop supervisor. "I can walk into a hospital and say that I contributed to this because the machines that we build helped build this hospital."

Lewis is one of seven of the 12 original employees that still work for Peddinghaus South Carolina. Meltzer says that most of them were former textile workers who'd been educated at Williamsburg Technical College. Since then, the company has continued to place a high value on technical education. Many of their employees are graduates of Williamsburg Tech or Horry-Georgetown Tech and they provide full tuition reimbursement to those who are pursuing a relevant degree.

"We're big on schooling," says Meltzer. "Both of the tech schools are feeders for us with the welding, machining and now with the new mechatronics. We couldn't do anything without our local technical colleges."

Meltzer points to one of his favorite success stories as an example. Richie Jennings came to him as a sophomore in high school having just completed a welding course and looking for part-time work. Before he completed his senior year, he was a full-time employee. Peddinghaus paid for his education at Williamsburg Tech as he acquired an associate degree and multiple welding certifications.

“I love that they gave me the opportunity to do something I love to do,” says Jennings. “You come in and you form these relationships with people and it becomes like working with family.”

In addition to his job as the welding shop supervisor at Peddinghaus, Jennings is an instructor at Williamsburg Tech and has also taught at Horry-Georgetown Tech. Several of his former students are now with the company.

“To see those guys grasp some of the same opportunities and how they’ve grown, it’s a win-win for me,” says Jennings.

The relationship with the local cooperative has also been important for Peddinghaus. Having experience with the large investor-owned utilities in his home state, Meltzer says he has been impressed with how Santee Electric makes the plant’s operations a priority.

“They treat local business and manufacturing great,” says Meltzer. “If there is a hurricane or an ice storm, I always get a call from Santee Electric to find out what we’re doing. They are very proactive about keeping us up and going (with power). We didn’t get that up in Illinois.”

Santee Electric delivers electricity to some formidable machines at the Peddinghaus South Carolina facility. A recent addition to the shop—a gigantic robotic arm dubbed the PeddiAssembler that

Peddinghaus Profile

- ▶ Founded in Gevelsburg, Germany in 1903 by Paul Peddinghaus.
- ▶ Initial products included anvils and hammers.
- ▶ Established U.S. headquarters in Bradley, Illinois in 1977.
- ▶ Chose their Andrews location in 1997 over Florence and Charleston.
- ▶ Manufactures machines for builders and steel industry across the globe, including several South Carolina companies, including:
  - Merchant Iron Works, Sumter
  - Steelworks of the Carolinas, Piedmont
  - Frazier Industrial, Lamar
  - SC Steel, Taylors
  - Watford Steel Buildings, Kingstree
  - Steelfab of South Carolina, Florence
  - C.M. Steel, York
- ▶ Currently there are 38 employees, most of which are from Georgetown, Williamsburg and Florence counties.

lifts, twists and welds steel structures—required a new feeder line from Santee Electric to power it. Then there is the Anglemaster, an intimidating green and orange machine that punches and shears with over 200 tons of pressure. Peddinghaus not only uses these machines, but markets them to their customers as well.

“Peddinghaus is an interesting company in that they use many of the machines that they make,” says Ronald Carter, manager of economic development for Santee Electric. “We enjoy a strong partnership with them and we are proud to have them as a member of the cooperative.”

Unclaimed Capital Credits

Santee Electric Cooperative has unclaimed capital credits for the following persons. As required by the state statute, this list identifies the names and last known address of the members whose unclaimed amount is $50 or more. If your name appears on the list, please contact our office at (800) 922-1604. If you recognize a name and know the location of the person, please have him/her contact our office. In order to claim capital credits for a deceased member who was married, the surviving spouse can claim the credits. ## Did You Know?

Electric cooperatives have retired $17 billion to members since 1988—$1.2 billion in 2018 alone. Because electric co-ops operate at cost, any excess revenues (called margins) are allocated and retired to members in the form of capital credits.
